

JAM is a South African founded, non-profit relief and development organization with more than 30 years' experience in relief and sustainable development.

JAM programs focus on combating malnutrition in young children by providing food security, micronutrient intervention, and assistance to orphans and vulnerable children. JAM also addresses the provision of water and sanitation, skills development, community-based agricultural development, and school infrastructure development.

At the end of 2015, JAM SA was supporting more than 1,700 Early Childhood Development (ECD) Centers. As David Brown, former MD of JAM , put it "JAM not only feeds the body - but also the mind "

JAM SA operates in all provinces of South Africa. It also extends its aid and expertise to children in other countries in Africa, remarkably feeding more than 1,000,000 children every day.

Through partnerships with concerned organizations and donors, JAM in South Africa feeds over 84,000 young children every school day - that is a staggering 1,848,000 meals every month.

As part of JAM's efforts to remain effective, as of January 2014, JAM SA introduced nutritional assessments to measure the impact of their programs.

"A healthy breakfast like JAM's nutrient-packed porridge effectively contributes to children's ability to learn and participate in the early educational process "
